When Rabbi Herzog collapsed and died his body was left lying in the street while his wife and children were placed on the deportation train, despite their tearful pleas to be allowed long enough to bury him. 128 YEARS BEFORE THE "MAYFLOWER"

Columbus discovered America 450 years ago — thanks to the Jews of Spain. His 1492 expedition was financed without interest by Luis de Santangel, chancellor of the King, and aided by other Marranos, such as Gabriel Sanchez, the royal treasurer, and Juan Cabrero, the royal chamberlain. At least five of Columbus's crew of 120 were Marranos; Luis de Torres, the interpreter, who had just been baptized, was the first to set foot in the New World. The astronomical tables of Abraham Zacuto, translated from the Hebrew, guided Columbus on the voyage. His second expedition, in 1493, was directly financed by the confiscated wealth of Spanish Jewry, which had been expelled the previous year. And on top of everything else, many famous scholars are convinced that Columbus himself was actually a Marrano.

JEWISH CHILDREN BRIGHT, TESTS SHOW

By EDWARD GRUSD
Managing Editor
National Jewish Monthly

WASHINGTON, D. C.—It has been said that Jews are like everybody else, only more so. This is certainly true so far as gifted children go, as is proved by one of the most fascinating human experiments ever made.

The experiment, which was made by Dr. Lewis Terman, professor of psychology at Leland Stanford University, is described in the October issue of The National Jewish Monthly, published by B'nai B'rith. The author is Dr. Samuel Tenenbaum, himself a Ph.D. in psychology.

Dr. Terman, who knows more about intelligence and intelligence testing than any other person in the world, according to Dr. Tenenbaum, brought together 1300 of the brightest children in California and made an intensive study of them. And what did he find, among other things?

He found that although Jews form approximately 5% of the population in Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Oakland, 10.5% of his 1300 gifted children were Jewish, and he suspected that the percentage was really higher than that, because, as he himself declared, "there is reason to believe that the presence of Jewish blood has in some cases been concealed."

That was 20 years ago. Dr. Terman's experiment is unique and exhaustive, because he is going back to his 1300 talented children to see what has happened to them now that they are grown up. This part of the experiment is only beginning, and the complete results will not be known for some time, but already Dr. Terman has selected for special study the 150 who have achieved the greatest success in life, and the 150 who have been least successful.

If the law of averages prevailed, Jews should form 10.5% of each group. Instead, Dr. Terman found that 14% of the most successful group are Jews. All this despite the fact that Jews are most discriminated against in the very fields where many of these bright children succeeded, namely, the academic fields.

But in his article, Dr. Tenenbaum does not confine himself to Dr. Terman's research. He quotes other authorities—all non-Jewish, like Terman—on the same subject.

The late Dr. Leta S. Hollingsworth, of Columbia University, for example, is quoted as having said: "Among pupils qualifying for special classes for the gifted in the public schools of New York City, there is a marked excess of Jewish parentage."

And Dr. Rudolf Pintner, also of Columbia, has declared: "Results compiled from intelligence tests indicate that the American Jew has a greater amount of rock-bottom intelligence than any other group in America, with the exception of the Japanese. The Japanese, however, are a restricted and selected group, it should be pointed out."

Dr. Herbert A. Carroll, former University of Minnesota professor, wrote: "Prejudice against Jews is especially unfortunate in view of their high level of intelligence."

And Dr. Terman himself, in his general studies, found that for the population as a whole, there is only one child out of every 200 who has an I. Q. of 140, which indicates the capacity to do "genius" work. But among Jewish children, one child out of every 100 makes an I. Q. score of 140!

So what? Does superior intelligence make better people, or better citizens? According to Dr. Tenenbaum, science's answer is yes. "The person of high intelligence," he writes, "is more likely to be generous, kind, decent, healthy, unselfish, more social-minded, better humored, and better-dispositioned. . . less likely to be criminal, diseased, demoralized, psychotic, neurotic, divorced, self-seeking. . . This is the consensus of opinion of all psychologists and sociologists who have investigated this subject."

It is, of course, another question why Jews should make such high I. Q. grades. Many authorities attribute it to the Jewish tradition of learning, to the centuries and even millenia of Jewish study of Torah. Dr. Pintner puts it differently: "The Jew has had to withstand so much opposition and persecution that probably the more intelligent ones have been able to survive. The poorer ones probably perished by the wayside or were assimilated."

Which adds a welcome argument against Jewish assimilation.

BELL STARS IN I. U.'s

EASY WIN OVER BUTLER

BLOOMINGTON —With football the center of attention at this time of the year the boys of Pi Lambda Phi continue their campus excellence in both varsity and intra-mural competition. Big Ed Bell, one of America's outstanding Jewish pigskin stars, sparked the Hoosier line in Indiana's 53-0 slaughter of Butler. Not only did Bell have an indirect hand in almost all of Indiana's scores through his savage blocking, but he was also responsible for an after touchdown conversion.

By decisively beating a strong Delta Chi intramural team in the first round of play, Alpha Theta established themselves as one of the top gridiron combinations on campus. Sparked by Brother Bud Rodin, who caught two touchdown passes, Brother Sid Izsak, who scored the third tally on an interception, and Pledge Jack Frank the team won 18-0.

Alpha Theta announces the pledging of Yale Friedman of Mishawaka, freshman on campus, and the organizer of a new campus band. Pledge Len Schroeter was the recipient of the Merit Scholarship, given for academic excellence, and extra-curricular activity.

Last Wednesday the chapter had an exchange dinner with the Sigma Delta Tau Sorority. At that time eight of the S. D. T. girls enjoyed dinner and dancing at the chapter house, while eight Pilams made the trek over to the sorority. This coming Wednesday Alpha Theta will continue its hospitality, by holding an open house.

Weekend guests for the Butler game included Brothers Al Rosenberg, Irv Linderman, Bill Meyers, Bob Meyers, Myron Weinstein and Harold Berger, all of Indianapolis; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Siegal of Milwaukee; Jim Schroeter of Hammond; and Bob Wilkie and Mort Siet of Chicago. Another recent guest was Brother Sid Gerstanhaber of Brooklyn, former Crimson backfield star, who is now a lieutenant in the Air Corps as a bombardier.

VICHY WOULD OUST ARCHBISHOP: 500 JEWISH CHILDREN IN HOMES DEPORTED

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

BERN—The official Vichy radio this week indicated that Archbishop Saliege of Toulouse was no longer considered "persona grata" in unoccupied France because of his denunciation of the deportation of Jews. Mgr. Saliege was "advised" over the Vichy radio to leave the country.

At the same time Swiss newspapers carry dispatches from Paris stating that Msgr. Chaptal, Bishop of Paris, has donned a yellow Mogen David in protest against the anti-Jewish persecutions in occupied and unoccupied France. His defiance of both the Nazi occupational authorities in Paris and the Laval government in Vichy is being emulated by many other Catholic church leaders and by nuns "creating a powerful impression on the people," the report states.

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

GENEVA—Five hundred Jewish children residing in homes maintained by the OSE, Jewish Health Society, in unoccupied France were delivered by French authorities to the Nazis for deportation to occupied territory in eastern Europe, it was reported here this week.

On the night of September 2, French police raided the home for Jewish refugee children maintained by the OSE at Chateau Montintin, near Limoges, and seized a number of adolescent children. The following night, the police again raided the premises, seizing smaller children, including a two-year old infant. Both groups of children were deported to an unknown destination.

YOM KIPPUR I had a long talk with Tevie Jacobs, and we discussed as we usually do when we get together, the newspaper situation and related topics. Tevie is an individualist and our friendship dates back to the time he took me to lunch while we were considering the purchase of The Jewish Post. Well anyway Tevie, who had been advertising manager of the Kahn Tailoring Company, was inducted into service, just a few short months after his marriage to Miriam Forman. Tevie went in as a private and on Yom Kippur he was a private. As far as you are concerned Tevie is still a private, because Tevie avoids personal publicity like an escaped prisoner trying to outwit a bloodhound. But this week I received a letter from Tevie starting off Dear Gabe, telling me about Isadore Camhi going to Officers Training and the same about Julian Glazer of Anderson. The letter was signed Tevie. Only by the return address on the envelope could I tell that there was news about Tevie. Before his name was the abbreviation Cpl. Sometime when I feel like it, I'll write an editor's chair about "modesty," for it is the one attribute, next to courage that I admire most.

TOWN CRIER is beginning to get fan mail. Here's America Lodge of Hammond throwing down the gauntlet to the fifteen other lodges in the state. If no one challenges the lodge's claim, Town Crier is willing to let it go down in history as such. Here's the letter: Dear G. M. C.

Will ye Town Crier bring forth those challenges from the other Lodges that think they can steal the slogan of America Lodge No. 901, "Indiana's Fastest Growing Lodge."

In the past eight months, America Lodge increased its membership by 370%. Furthermore, we're still bringing in applications and our fall membership drive has not yet begun. Just wait a few months for more startling results. The curtain has just gone up. America Lodge, "Indiana's Fastest Growing Lodge," is staging a real show. This is a benefit performance in behalf of B'nai B'rith and all B'nai B'riths. Hope you like it, too.

As a closing thought, why not let those other Lodges do their own challenging or do they need a press agent?

Cordially yours,
LEO POTTITZER.

TOWN CRIER WENT OVER TO Terre Haute Sunday for the testimonial banquet for Rabbi Taxay. The affair, although carried out in simple style, was held in the beautiful Mayflower Room of the Terre Haute House, and attended by a capacity crowd of the Rabbi's friends. On the program were short talks by a Negro Pastor, a Catholic Priest, a Protestant and a Methodist Minister. The Rabbi took an evening full of kidding very graciously. Rabbi Julian Flieg has been definitely selected to take Rabbi Taxay's place during his absence. A. N. Levin did a perfect job as toastmaster, and Ben Blumberg was no slouch either when it came his turn to bid Rabbi Taxay goodbye after eighteen years of association.

RABBI TAXAY was the first Indiana Rabbi to enlist as a chaplain, but another State Rabbi was in Indianapolis Tuesday at Fort Benjamin Harrison for his examination. If he passes, I'll be able to announce his name, but it would be embarrassing to announce it now, and then have to explain later.

AL SEGAL Speaks On Of Being Just

I AM SADDENED to see my Zionist friends taking on one of the quaintly antique ways of reaction, namely, the practice of chopping off dissident heads.

Lately some of their leaders have been calling for the understanding, generous head of Dr. Judah L. Magnes who is President of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. It seems that Dr. Magnes hasn't been following the party line and for that reason it is the opinion of these Zionists that he is no longer a fit person to carry the light of scientific truth as head of the university in Palestine.

"Off with his head!" they demand. "He must resign."

Throwing scientists out of universities for their political, social or economic opinions is something that is no longer approved even in our more conservative Southern states. (Witness the recent defeat of Governor Talmadge of Georgia who had taken off the academic heads of some professors in state-supported schools because of their ideas on the Negro problem.)

In Nazi Germany, too, the universities have been swept clean of all scientists whose right arms were not elevated to the approved angle in heiling Hitler, to say nothing of those who didn't have the right blood in their veins.

Yes, it is horribly saddening to see some of our Zionists taking up manners which have made yoke Talmadge a laughing-stock and have set Nazis outside the pale of western civilization. If we are to have a Jewish state in Palestine, it must be a state of light and leading. A new state haunted by the foul ghosts of old reaction would make no sense at all.

Not that I should like to see an exclusive Jewish state in Palestine. I go along rather with Dr. Magnes who wants Palestine governed by a bi-national state—a state in which Jews and Arabs shall have an equal share. (It is for entertaining that idea that some of the Zionists want his block knocked off.)

Perhaps in a happier, much later time the descendants of the current Zionists will venerate the saintly memory of Dr. Magnes who was brave for brotherhood and brought down on his head the wrath of people who were jealous for their claims of new nationalism in a world already torn to shreds by the jealousies of old nationalisms.

I am not privy to the thoughts of Dr. Magnes who was a great Zionist when some of the current Zionist leaders still were in their diapers. But I can well guess what he is thinking about.

As a man of peace he doesn't want a Jewish state that flouts the resentment of Arabs and can live only by the protection of British arms—a Jewish state under siege of hostile Arabs who will claim that their rights in Palestine are as good—if not better—than the rights of Jews.

A man of peace, in the Jewish pattern, can't conceive of a happy homeland resting on the power of guns. A homeland can be happy only when it is at peace with its neighbors and in which no inhabitant feels deprived of his just portion in the governance of the land.

Perhaps Dr. Magnes thinks much about the essential rights of Arabs. A brotherly man can't truculently set them aside as people who are not entitled to consideration when it comes to disturbing the functions of government in Palestine.

After all, the Arabs have been there a long time, have been a majority there. It doesn't answer anything to say that they didn't do much with the country in the years they practically had it to themselves. A man's right to his home and to the governance thereof remains just as good even if he has neglected to build a rathskeller in the basement and to put in hot and cold running water and shower baths and flushing toilets.

Nor does it argue for exclusive possession by the Jews because they have done a great and good job of improving the country. Ruthless invaders may claim exclusive possession by right of conquest and by right of installations they have built, but not gentle people who come without guile to rededicate a holy land unto peace and justice. Such claims are not in the character with Jews and their teachings.

A Jew may well say to an Arab: "You have lived here a long time and I am a newcomer here, though this was long ago the country of my people. You and I have in common our love for this country. My love has to do with sentiments of history, with the faith of my forefathers planted and cherished even unto death sometimes.

"Your love is bound up with the soil which has given you bread. I well know how men cherish the soil from which they sprang even though it has only grudgingly fed them.

"You and I can not be enemies since we have so much in common here. Can we not work together to serve this country we both love, neither of us subject to the other but each sharing equally the function of the State?

"In this land, holy both to you and me, let us show mankind the way to justice, compassion and tolerance. I would be far from my character as a man of peace if I menaced you with truculent demands, as if I were the exclusive possessor of the country. I am your brother and I do not want to be a ruler over you but only your partner in a bi-national state. I want no political power in which you do not equally participate. You and I must have political power together in order that together we may make this country good."

This must be the thinking of Dr. Magnes, as it is also the mind of all reasonable men. It appears that Zionists have tied up the Hadassah Society in one condemnation with Dr. Magnes. Some of the Hadassah people have been going along with Dr. Magnes on the idea that, especially in a holy land, there should be generous manifestations of brotherhood. This is in accordance with Hadassah character which in its hospitals and clinics gives Arabs and Jews equal devotion and discerns no difference between Jewish and Arab pain.

Dr. Magnes' opponents may succeed in chopping off his academic head but in the end Dr. Magnes' idea will prevail. The decapitated frequently have had a way of coming eventually to victory, as history proves. The happy ending of the Palestine problem will not be an exclusive Jewish state but the kind of state Dr. Magnes desires—a partnership in which Jews and Arabs will serve together.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR RABBIS SHOWN IN NEW B'NAI B'RITH SURVEY

Special

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Expansion of B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation program to 75 college campuses is one of the important new outlets opened to the American rabbinate in recent years, Dr. Lee J. Levinger points out in a new six-page study of "Professional Aspects of the Rabbinate," which was published this week by the B'nai B'rith Vocational Service Bureau.

Establishment of new congregations in small towns and in new suburban communities, the trend toward assistant rabbis in the larger congregations and the demand for nearly 100 Jewish chaplains in the armed forces and others in the war-time service of the Jewish Welfare Board are other factors cited by Dr. Levinger to demonstrate increased opportunities in the rabbinate.

Pointing out that the 4,750,000 Jews of the United States are served by approximately 1,700 rabbis and that only 60 per cent of the Jewish congregations employ rabbis, Dr. Levinger concludes that "there is probably room for an expansion of the American rabbinate." Other figures cited in the study, copies of which are available from the B'nai B'rith Vocational Service Bureau, 1003 K St., N. W. Washington, D. C., are:

The five principal rabbinical seminaries enroll a total of about 500 students; they graduate from 50 to 60 a year; since their founding these five seminaries have graduated approximately 1,300 rabbis; the average salary of a rabbi in Reform, Conservative and Orthodox congregations alike is about $2,400 a year.

If you haven't had your car heater inspected or if you need a new car heater, now is the time to get the inspection or the new heater, is the word passed on by the Rose Tire Co., 930 N. Cooperation of motorists will provide for better service from the department, Mr. Peterson said.

"Don't wait until the temperature takes another drop before you get heater service or anti-freeze installed," Mr. Peterson urged. "It will help us and help you if you give us the necessary time to do a good job."

Morgenstern Declares Judaism and Christianity Basically One; Hits Zionism at H.U.C. Opening

SAYS JUDAISM A WAY OF LIFE; ATTACKS ASSIMILATIONISTS

CINCINNATI — "The true ally and partner of Christianity is its mother religion, Judaism," President Julian Morgenstern of the Hebrew Union College, declared at the opening exercises of the College's 68th academic year. His subject was "Judaism's Contribution to Post-War Religion."

"The war, revealing the true soul and the long-suppressed passions of many nations, has made crystal clear that, in its task of world-redemption, Christianity still stands only on the threshold of achievement that its work lies still ahead, that arrayed against it is a hating and hateful enemy paganism," he continued.

"In this struggle for world-conversion and world-salvation not at all its (Christianity's) enemy but its true ally and partner, is its mother-religion, Judaism."

"Today, we realize, as never before, since Christianity's birth, how intimate are the relations of the two religions, so intimate that they are truly, basically one, that they have a common descent, a common vision, hope, task, mission, face a common foe and a common fate, must achieve a common victory or share a common death."

"One thing the war has demonstrated surely, that religion is not a formula of belief but is a way of life, even as Judaism has always affirmed; that belief and worship must be translated into conduct, action, love, with far-reaching social implications, resting upon that principle which is common and basic to both Judaism and Christianity, and the consequent unity as brothers and equals."

"Judaism has always taught that this life itself is good, is worth living for its own sake, that in itself it contains potentialities of perfection. . . ."

Why Jewish People Must Survive

"For Judaism to survive and to proclaim its eternal message of life and salvation to all mankind and to play its part in fashioning of that better world which mankind is now visioning Judaism must be lived. It can be lived fully, and for the present at least, only by the Jewish people.

"For this service our Jewish people must continue to survive as a people, as a people with a destiny, as a world-wide religious unity, as the warp in the fabric of world-unity, of which nations and races will be the woof. This very survival as the Jewish people, the bearers of Judaism and its messages of world-salvation, is an integral part of our service unto mankind and of our contribution to our partnership with Christianity, our daughter-religion."

"Judaism must be lived by our Jewish people confidently, courageously, eagerly, exultantly, with full appreciation of the worth of our heritage, of its indispensability for human salvation and of the lofty role which we, as its bearers and transmitters, are called upon to play in this next, momentous and happier act in the drama of human life. It is a proud role indeed, from which we need not shrink, and the burden of which need terrify us no longer, but which we may assume with faith, with purpose and with self-consecration."

Anti-Semitism Affects Us Too Much

"It is well for us to realize this now and clearly. For the last three-quarters of a century anti-Semitism has been the most potent directive force in Jewish life. It has shaped not only our attitude towards the world, but also our attitude towards ourselves, towards our people and towards our destiny. It has made us deeply self-conscious and has created within us a decided inferiority complex."

"It has disposed us to be overly solicitous and apologetic and to constantly justify our existence. It has set us on the defensive and made mere survival as a people the highest Jewish goal toward which we dare aspire.

"It has called forth assimilation in its extreme expression, a cowardly haste even a panic, on the part of cringing individuals to shake off the burden of the Jew by obliterating both their Judaism and their Jewishness and making themselves as they think, exactly like the mass of men in the world without."

Anti-Semitism Created Zionism

"But equally anti-Semitism plus a not unnatural primary and largely emotional reaction to it has created Jewish political nationalism, the attempt on the part of a large section of the Jewish people to make itself once again what it was actually only during brief periods of existence, and with no distinguished achievement nor particular glory as such, a nation precisely like the other nations of the earth, with its own land, its own army, its own government, its own politics and its own politicians, its own economy, its own culture, its own international and interracial feuds, to force Judaism and the Jewish people backward once again into the mould of nationalism, the spirit and inevitable purposes of which have been the chief cause of the present world-cataclysm, and which, we believe firmly, is now about to be superseded by a far higher form of organization of peoples in the impending pattern of world-unity."

"It would be one of the sardonic tragedies of world-history if the Jewish people reacting in despair to the heavy pressure of anti-Semitism, should now forget the vision which it has beheld and which for 2,500 years it has faithfully proclaimed and which only now mankind is just beginning out of its own darkness and misery and despair, to comprehend dimly, should repudiate its God-appointed destiny, now clearer and surer than ever, in order to adjust itself to a pattern and purpose of existence almost on the verge of being outgrown and rejected."

"It was not Jacob, but Esau, who sold his birthright for a loathsome mess of pottage; and should our history reverse itself now?"

"We have permitted anti-Semitism and its resultant effects to shape our life as Jews in the world during these last 75 years."

"We have tacitly accepted anti-Semitism as something which must always be, and chameleon-like we have taken on a protective coloration and concealed even from ourselves our true identity, our true faith, our true reason for existence, our true destiny."

Must Cease To Fear World

"Now that a new world is about to emerge a new world in the fashioning of which Judaism must play an indispensable, distinctive and a distinguished part, is it not high time that we, the Jewish people, the House of Israel, bearers of a precious heritage, reawaken to our true selves and our true, God-appointed destiny, that we cease to fear what the world may think of us or what it may do to us, that we fear only God, our Maker, and to fail to perform that service in His world to which He has called us, and for which He has prepared us and led us on?"

"Is it not time that once again we begin to walk with eyes turning neither to the right nor to the left, but firmly fixed upon the goal straight ahead, erect, with head unbowed, scorning the buffets of adversity and the stings of persecution, disdaining to fear to hide or to flee, but proudly, confidently, eagerly, rejoicing in our enduring role as God's servant, proclaiming a way of life for man, that at last His salvation may reach to the very ends of the earth, we march on and on through life, through history into eternity, fulfilling the word of the Psalmist, 'I will not die, but I will live to declare the works of the Lord.'"

ARYAN BLOOD

Test Made on Jew to Prove Blood Is Jewish by Sorbonne Lab

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

BERN—Quoting a Berlin broadcast, Swiss newspapers this week report that for the first time a blood test was made in France to determine whether a man was a Jew or an "Aryan."

The test was made on a Parisian who failed to register as a Jew and declared that he was not Jewish. He was taken to the Sorbonne University where one of the professors was ordered to make a "biological examination" of his blood. "The test established that the man had Jewish blood and he will therefore be placed on trial for violating the anti-Jewish laws," the Berlin radio is reported as stating.

(The Medical Information Bureau of the New York Academy of Medicine, informed of the above report, commented: "It is extremely unlikely that such a test could be devised. In the light of present knowledge, the claim sounds preposterous, particularly since the term 'Aryan' is a propagandist and political concept rather than a biological one.")

THE EDITOR'S CHAIR—

I don't know what the ethics are about exposing one of your own contributors, but I personally have no choice in the matter. Several weeks ago Morris Caplan, whose sister Bernice was one of our best employees here for years, stopped me to inquire if I'd like to have some letters from Arthur W. Grist, who for many years lived in England. Certainly, I said. I had read some of his letters in the daily paper and I thought they were pretty good, although it was very obvious that he was a British propagandist.

Well his first letter was an eye opener. Certainly I thought Mr. Grist was an educated man, but his deep insight and knowledge of the Anglo-Jewry led me to wonder. In fact I asked Morris Caplan whether Mr. Grist was Jewish, and when he answered in a definite negative, I just figured out that somewhere Mr. Grist had some connection with Jewish organizations or activities.

The letters I refer to were about the changes the war had wrought in Anglo-Jewry, the break-up of the home, the motor cycle Jewish teachers, the difficulties of worship, etc.

So just a few minutes ago (this is Sunday) I began reading "The Jewish Layman" the publication of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods. I was attracted to the feature article by Dr. Cecil Roth, a leading Jewish historian. My brain must have fidgeted because the conviction grew more and more that I had read that article somewhere before. That feeling kept disturbing me, but I knew it couldn't be so. Then I thought, "well I'll be darn." So I looked up Mr. Grist's letters of August 7 and 28, and you could have knocked me over with a baseball bat. Mr. Grist without even so much as quotation marks had copied word for word Dr. Roth's entire article and claimed it as his own.

That explained Mr. Grist's insight and the knowledge of Anglo-Jewry. I still wonder at the "chutzpah" of the man. Not one word except in the very first phrase of each letter was changed. Mr. Grist ended his first letter about the middle of Dr. Roth's article and went on with the very next sentence in his second letter.

Mr. Grist's letters were long, especially the last one and the two I have in my desk now, so when I could not find room to his privilege too then, and I only

Fill No Pulpits Permanently For the Duration

IN ALL FAIRNESS to the sixty-odd rabbis now serving as chaplains with the armed forces, and to the many others who will volunteer soon, there should be a general understanding throughout the congregations of the United States that no new rabbis will be permanently appointed for the duration.

The logic of this agreement is obvious. Pulpits in the larger and more desirable congregations of the nation are the ambition of almost every rabbi. Vacancies in some of these pulpits occur often at intervals of from twenty to thirty-five years, and once filled are removed from the field forever, as far as the present set of available rabbis is concerned.

If because a rabbi has the courage to volunteer to serve his country he loses an opportunity to be a candidate for one of these pulpits, he not only is being unfairly penalized for his courage, but those rabbis who prefer not to answer the urgent call for chaplains, are given a premium in addition.

The end that no rabbis will be named permanently during the war might be accomplished by various means, but if other Anglo-Jewish papers throughout the nation will either reprint this editorial or write one of their own along the same line, it is quite possible that a sort of gentleman's agreement among the congregations of the nation will be the result.

The Forum Problem

NOW WE COME to the prize annual problem which even a smart editor like this one can't figure out.

For seventeen years now the Jewish Community Center Association has presented to the Jewish community of Indianapolis and the general community as a whole, an annual forum, bringing to the city such authorities in their field as Vincent Sheean, Max Lerner, John Mason Brown, just to mention a few of the past several years. Non-Jews consider this part of the J.C.C.A.'s program as one of its outstanding contributions to the cultural life of the city. In fact at one time the Kirshbaum Forum was the only public discussion platform in Indianapolis.

But annually when the forum tickets are turned in, and the Jewish attendance computed, it is found that less than twenty per cent of the audience is Jewish. This despite the fact that admission is free to Kirshbaum members, while others pay a $1.00 per lecture, or a lesser sum if attendance is via season tickets.

Now a good percentage of the Indianapolis Jewish community is college bred. Jews in Indianapolis are considered quite alert to the problems not alone of the Jewish community but of the general community as well, and their interests in the social difficulties of our times cannot be said to be other than deep.

Yet Sunday Forum nights our Jewish intelligentsia cannot be found at Kirshbaum Center.

Somewhere something is fishy. This year the forum lineup compares favorably with that being presented by any discussion group in the city. The forum will continue on year after year because the non-Jewish public gives it its support.

Somewhere there must be an answer.

Current Comment

An Incident at An Army Camp Told By Mayer Horowitz in The Call—Another John Doe was a Jewish refugee from Austria. We shall call him Engel. He was an editor and teacher of history and literature in Vienna. Engel was in his thirties and spoke beautiful English.

He told us many stories of Nazi persecution in Austria. At other times we talked about culture, the army life and things in general.

Then something happened.

I wrote to several Yiddish newspapers and asked them to send copies to the post library, which they did. Engel was one of the librarians.

One morning he sent word that he wanted to see me. I went to him. He told me about several Yiddish dailies which came in the mail. I was glad to hear that and asked him where he put them. They were not on the newspaper rack. No, of course not. Knowing that I read Yiddish, he thought there must be some connection between me and the dailies. So, instead of hanging them on the rack, he took them to his locker to give to me later on.

At first I didn't grasp the meaning of his action. I asked why he did that. His reply made it all clear to me. He didn't think that was the place for a Yiddish newspaper. Since the majority of the soldiers are Gentiles, the dailies would be out of place here in the library, and in bad taste.

I grew hot under the collar. I scrutinized Engel and understood everything. He was still living in the Austria of Hitler and the Nazis. There was fear in his eyes and the memory of nightmarish persecution (Engel himself had been in a concentration camp).

I remember being angry and how my voice shook when I told him that here in America one reads what one likes in one's language. The army does not ban foreign language newspapers. I and others, being Jews, are interested in everything that happens in the Jewish world. The American press does not give us Jewish news, therefore we go to the Yiddish press. I'm not ashamed to read Yiddish in public. All this I told him.

He grew red in the face, stammered something, made several apologies, and I departed.

The same day, in the evening, I walked into the library and found the Yiddish dailies on the newspaper rack.

Jews Should Have Known Better, Rabbi Saul B. Applebaum Says in The Jewish Layman—And yet we Jews, against whom a war has been declared these last ten years, have lost this all-important part of our equipment. Some philosophers may say that the Jews' loss of spirit is part of man's general reaction to an age which has tantalized them by giving them undreamed of power at the touch of an electric button, yet has not taught them how to control it.

We Jews should have known long before the discovery in this twentieth century by the rest of the world "But by my spirit said the Lord" is the best way of life. We should have known that it is the inner spiritual life, the religion, which has sustained the Jew, yet, we acted as though this had no place in our long history. We should have learned long ago that neither wealth, property, treaties, political alliances, pleading, nor—even self-abandonment of all human rights appeased maniacal demagogues because we repeat so often in our prayers "put not thy trust in princes." We have emphasized that the spirit of God is more important than all else, but we have done nothing about it. We should have known from our long history that the defenses of the mind and spirit are as much military objectives as forts and pillboxes.

COULD HE MEAN SOME OTHER JEWISH PAPER; IT COULDN'T BE US

To the editor,

I have long wanted to write to tell you how much I have enjoyed reading The Jewish Post. I like its simple layout and the bold and vigorous quality of your editorials. I think it takes Macabean courage for an editor of a Jewish paper in the Middle West to break lances with the B'nai B'rith. I trust that you will maintain your independence of thought and judgment and that your paper will grow from strength to strength.

I wish particularly to commend you for printing the splendid article "Why I Am Against College Sororities". I wish you would send me about half a dozen copies of this article so that I might send it to some of the young people in my Congregation who are debating the problem of fraternities and sororities.

With best wishes for a significant and healthy New Year, I am

Sincerely,

JACOB J. WEINSTEIN.

balked when he said that he had come slightly insistent. That was because he got me on the phone and he said "I want to see you" and I had been approached to give his material to the other paper. That always makes me see "red" to be threatened, so I immediately told him in so many words to "go ahead," which calmed him down.

Now can anyone tell me where Mr. Grist got hold of Dr. Roth's article in August when it was not published until October?

Although the nominating committee of the Indiana-Kentucky State Association of B'nai B'rith, as it was especially instructed to do, has not as yet met, it seems that no one is too much to blame. Eph Levin, who is chairman, called a meeting here a week ago, but since it was Erev Yom Kippur, only 3 of the 7-man committee indicated their ability to attend and the meeting was called off. The report was due to be in the hands of the member lodges 30 days before the annual convention, Oct. 18, so that even had the meeting been held, which would have been on the 20th, the instruction could not have been followed out to the letter.

As a result of the postponement of the meeting here, it was the opinion that the nominations would be made as usual at the State convention, and the above explanation given as the reason. I hope that such will not be the case. Even if 30 days cannot be given the lodges to discuss the relative merits of the candidates, certainly two weeks or even one week would be preferable to waiting until the day, or the day before the State convention. I still think a meeting of the committee should be called for this Sunday, possibly in South Bend, with Seymour Weisberger, president, replacing those unable to attend, so that the nominations will be made in calmness and deliberation, and the state lodges be given an opportunity, no matter how truncated, to discuss the candidates.
